COMMUNICATING WITH NATURE SPIRITS

Trees, rocks, nature spirits and other dimensional beings are very ancient and very intelligent earth lifeforms. But the sense of time and nature of matter in the nature spirit realms is different from our human one.

Rocks and trees move slower than humans and have greater patience. Therefore, it is usually over decades and centuries that they develop images on themselves of who they are and what concerns them. They express a wide variety of consciousness.

Some rocks and trees are very serious, others distressed, and others jokesters.

On the other hand, rocks and trees may be utilized by the deva and nature spirits of the area, by Mother Earth, and by other advanced life forms to support energy grids and to tell stories. These beings can move very fast and shape physical form as if it were mere putty, in a matter of human earth minutes.

Some mature rocks and trees have no interest in communicating their stories. But others aspire differently – they want to express who and what they are. These trees, when deep in the woods, often create depictions of animals, inner earth beings or ETs on their personal canvases, as this is who they have contact with.

Trees and rocks living where they have frequent contact with humans (such as in a park or along a preserve trail) will frequently depict images with a human, nodal or custodial connection.

Nodal trees are part of the complex, multi-layered earth grid that anchors different bits of intelligence for the use of all. There is often an image designating the energy, such as an ape, lion or bison.

Nodal Tree photographed near Wilmont, Wisconsin. Mary Sutherland

Some trees serve as homes for nature spirits. Green men, Gnomes, Ladies of the Woods and other such lifeforms carve their images into the tree designating their “turf,” and this image serves as their calling card and address.

Tree Whispering

Occasionally Atala exhibits her work in local galleries. This photo was on display in 2014 at the Geneva Public Library where she exhibited twenty images that ranged from art photographs of trees to a recording of the spirits present within the trees. The trees live throughout the USA, from New England through the Midwest to the Olympic Peninsula.

If you would like Atala to view your images of nature spirits, please submit your imagery through her website, www.crystal-life.com/blog The blog page has a submission area in the right hand column. You never know, the images that you share could be a part of one of Atala's future blogs!

In my own Nature Spirit Photography, I serve as a recorder of these intelligences. I work with the life forms, asking permission on my outings of the deva (nature guardian) of the area. I explain what I want to do, wait to receive the blessing to do so, and then follow directions as I am led to subjects who wish to be photographed.

The Nature Spirit life forms I have so far photographed include Green men, Green women, Leprechauns, Gnomes, Trolls, Faeries, Moss Fairies and Ladies of the Woods. Nodal images include bison, lions, apes, bears, elephants, mice and Guardians of Place. I have also photographed a number of complex stories consciously created by life forms of other dimensions.

THE BENEFITS OF FOCUSING ON ONE OF ATALA TOY'S NATURE SPIRIT PHOTOGRAPHS

All life is interconnected. Your own consciousness decides what you will see and experience. The energies of those around you also influence what you will see. So does the energy of lifeforms coexisting with you but in different dimensions. Although you may not be aware of these energies, they are still there. You will be happier, healthier and more fulfilled if you learn to see and work with the full range of consciousness in your environment. Humans are meant to be conscious co-creators and the responsible custodians of the earth; decide to become that amazing person.

You can sit with any of my photographs, which have all been taken with the cooperation of beneficent nature spirit beings. Focus or meditate on the being depicted, and use it as a pathway to your own conscious, extended awareness. Hang one of these images in a room so you can consciously connect to that physical area to earth energies. Gift this image to a friend to help them very naturally grow in earth awareness.

ABOUT NATURE SPIRIT
PHOTOGRAPHER ATALA
DOROTHY TOY

I have been an interdimensional communicator my entire life but only began consciously exploring these capacities about fifteen years ago. That's when the resident gnome at my summer home in the New Hampshire woods gave me an invitation. He asked me to join him on an outing to photograph a moss fairy. The invitation intrigued me. I set out on a walk with him, got the photograph – and was hooked! Since then, I have studied all aspects of nature spirit photography, from camera use to the nature of the beings it is my joy to photograph. Most of my nature spirit photographs are realistic.

Atala Dorothy Toy

My objective is to faithfully record the messages the rocks and trees are conveying. All these images are presented with a minimal use of adjustments – just contrast and saturation.

Sometimes I will do an artistic story that conveys the emotions and thoughts being presented. These artistic pieces might use collage and textures to express the message. The full-frame Nikon D850 is my camera of choice. Adobe Lightroom and Photoshop are used to process the raw image. Textures from various sources such as 2 Lil Owls and Meredith are occasionally added. Printing is done on an Epson Sure Color P800 inkjet with Red River paper in a matte or satin finish.

You can work with these inspiring images in a number of ways. The different ways vary per image but include cards, matted and framed large art photographs, coasters, mouse pads, mugs, magnets, and jewelry.

I had heard from a local that some rock mounds may exist on Gander Mountain, about a 20 minute drive from Burlington, WI. Mileage wise goes, about 16 or 17 miles from Burlington, in Walworth County, close to the Racine County Line and the state line of Illinois and Wisconsin. After going to the location, I was thrilled to find some Adena 'Rock' Mounds and ceremonial sites. Having all these mounds near Wilmont, Wisconsin would confirm that this area is a high energy and portal site. The Ski Slopes can be seen from this location.

Memories of Times Past

'Professor Bill' Matteson

Please don't ask why I know these things, but here is some more useless information from me, Prof Bill.

My Experience in Dowsing

Professor Bill

Dowsing was around since time began, but it wasn't until The Abbe Mermet in the late 1800's a Swiss Cleric put a scientific handle on it. It became called 'Radiesthesia'.

Radiesthesia encompassed all fields that used a physical or mental vibration, such as divining, water-witching, pendulums. The Ouija board planchette is a form of Radiesthesia; as is Automatic writing.

Here is how it works, there is within everyone, a vibration that connects us to divine providence or Universal

Professor Bill's Corner

Bill Matteson - Uptown Chicago History Correspondent

I am blessed or cursed with the type of mind that remembers certain things. That I have read, heard or experienced and over the years find little cubby holes to tuck them away. Then on a given day, a little more of the story filters in, then inside the mind comes a blinding explosion; the light comes on and the story pops up. Here are some of those stories.

Consciousness. Dowsing rods, forked twigs, pendulums are only some of the tools used, but that's all they are, just tools.

The Abbe was the king of the dowsers; he even used the pendulum in the Confessional to see if the person was telling him the truth.

All the gold, silver, and any precious metal or gems found by the Conquistadors were found by this method, Today large Mining and Oil Companies employ map dowsers and then, when the map dowser finds an area, they send in a field sensitive to pin point the location.

This is not 100% and will never stand up to scientific testing, but it is the most accurate method known today.

I love using the term "Teleradiesthesia" which is using Radiesthesia over long distance like Map dowsing. Therefore, I am a teleradiesthesiaologist and believe me I have trouble spelling it, spell check melted down on that one!

Here's how it works: holding a pendulum over a map it will start to vibrate or make a movement, when it passes over the item you are seeking that information is then given to another dowser to pin point the item in the field.

Let's say you just misplaced your keys, your sub-consciousness remembers, exactly where they are, but your consciousness doesn't.

With the pendulum you can use it as a tool to question your mind and find the location of the lost keys.

This is one form of Universal magic.

The Danger in this lies with the dowser - you only use this method for finding lost articles or items that are here in this world.

But like the Ouija Board people get carried away like a kid with a new found toy and they want to connect with the departed or find something in the future, or have a conversation with the spirit world, this opens the door to another form of magic, a very dangerous form at that, Haunting, possession and poltergeist activities

The movie the Exorcist was a true story about a boy in St Louis who was about 14 years old when someone gave him an Ouija board.

Beware it is not a game, I would not give any kid an Ouija board; it's as dangerous as handing them a loaded gun!

When I marketed the crystal dowsing kit for choosing lottery numbers I didn't realize that I was seeking something that was in the future. That was a big No/No and I opened the door for a lot of personal bad Karma and the Angels of Karma accepted no excuses. "I'm sorry or I didn't know" just doesn't work for them

Awaking with a start one night I was fortunate enough to become aware of what I did and made immediate moves to rectify my infringement. All kits were thrown out burned and disposed of, in proper manner. Through attending all the Physic Fairs I met a lot of interesting people most of them Con artists, but interesting anyway.

I met only two good seers one was well known, Irene Hughes and the other was Holly.

Back to the bad Karma and its effects

So one night I was startled awake with the most evil howling I ever heard. As I lay there I stated to think it was just a real bad dream, and then it came again, this time more terrifying.

I instantly knew what was happening; I opened a door to the other world and did not close it properly.

So I had to cleanse the area by using a circle ambulation, (please note that spell check doesn't work all the time) with a banishing fire pentagram ritual; a license to depart and a minor rite of exorcism .

I checked with a book and on the page I opened was a paragraph that explained the very ritual I performed and also said that I should seek the advice of a seer that I could trust.

I had met Holly at a Physic Fair some months before and she gave me her card, we only talked briefly.

So, as I am calling Holly, I am thinking I can't make it today but tomorrow at 4 would be great.

Holly answered, I said my name is Bill and I need a reading, she said I can't make it today but tomorrow at 4 would be great. I thought wow talk about telepathy.

Holly lived on the third floor at Foster and Clark Street in Andersonville. The mailbox simply read, Holly. I rang, the buzzer sounded and I walked up three flights and knocked on the door on the left. After a few minutes the door opened a crack and a guy peeks out and asks if I could wait a few more minutes.

Now I am always on the lookout for an impending scam and I was not about trusting anyone at that moment.

Finally the guy walks out, he says, Holly is afraid of me, she doesn't know what I represent and he will have to stay with us for her protection. She had mentioned that she had never had visions such as she had when she talked to me on the phone.

Now I am really puzzled, but I wanted to see where this was going, so I said 'ok by me' and he ushered me in.

Holly looked me right in the eye and said; "You have trouble with spirits in your house which is white and surrounded by large oak trees, is that correct?"

I said 'yes'.

She then said "You have taken care of it and you don't need me. How did you do what you did? How did you know what you knew?"

I was a little puzzled with these questions.

She breathed easy and told her husband he could leave, I spent the rest of the time explaining to Holly how to detoxify an area and situations for some problems she had personally.

Because of that she didn't charge me for the reading and wanted to pay me; I declined. That was the first and only time I ever met Holly, she moved a few weeks later.

I hope that I have not lead anyone astray, I am not an Expert in this field, nor do I want to be, I know just enough to leave it alone. And the more I do learn, helps me to realize, 'I don't know anything'.

The Magicians

Professor Bill

I must be off about my father's work said the 12 year old Jesus as he left the Temple...But which Father? Joseph or God the Father...How about both!

Jesus disappears in the Bible at 12 and reappears at about 31. Where was he during the missing 19 years? Well I am about to tell you, but first I have to explain a few things about what was the true religion at that Time...

It was all pure magi, dealing with magic and all sorts of magic ritual incantations and evocations.

In an early Biblical translation Joseph was mentioned as a 'Master of the Craft' which was erroneously interpreted as a tradesman or carpenter but today we know that the term 'master of the craft' means something very different than what we were told.

The book of Genesis, as is, has only the Books of Mose's Pentateuch. The others, dealing with magic, ritual, summing of demons and angelic beings were thrown out by Constantine in the 300's ...so the average person would not be privy to magical knowledge. These missing five books are now known as the Arcane or Occult.

If we look closely in Genesis we see the Aaron, Moses Brother was the true Magician here, he carried the magic rod. This was the rod that struck the rock that produced the water, killed the Pharaoh's snakes and parted the Red Sea.

Genesis also tells us of his magical breastplate adorned with 12 stones, which became the basis for our present day birth stones.

With that being said:

Jesus went off to two schools of mystery/magic to learn early Alchemy. One was the School of the Essene's and the other was the school of the Nazarene. He became known as the Nazarene because of that not because he was from Nazareth.

So at age 31 'Jesus the Alchemist' re-appears and proceeds about his father's work. The stories about his abilities are rife throughout the Bible.

His Mother asks him to help out at a wedding when they ran out of wine so with magical deftness he transmutes water into wine; he heals people; makes the blind see and the deaf hear. He uses more magic on the Mount when he feeds multitudes with five fish and a couple of loaves of bread (He had to use scraps to regenerate the material)

All are alchemical practicesHis walking on water; Levitation in one and controlling the weather is another.

Simon Magus and Levitating Priests – Professor Bill

There was also a dark side to those schools and one brilliant student was Simon Magus who later challenged Peter to a Magicians Duel.

Now Simon Magus was a self-serving egotist who wanted all the power afforded him by magic but he didn't want to put in the time and effort it took to attain it...So he tried to bribe Peter and Paul to "lay on their hands" and baptize him as a short cut... but they refused.

Simon Magus was a highly competent Magician in his own right but he wanted more. When he thought he was powerful enough he challenged Peter to the duel in Public. As Simon was Levitating and flying around the square Peter stepped up made a gesture, uttered a "prayer" and Simon fell to the ground in 4 pieces.

However today within magical circles the highest Adept is known as the Magus

If anyone would like a close but safe look at these practices...Watch the movie Willow and pay attention especially to the sorcerers duel at the end.

Friday the 13th And the Shroud of Turin

Professor Bill

On Friday October 13th 1307 King Phillip IV of France conspired with Pope Clement the V, to kill all known Knights Templars and discredit them for death was not enough.

Jealous of the riches of the Templars and the powers they wielded, both King and Pope were in debt to them. The Pope declared the Templars as Heretics, Devil worshipers, practitioners of Black Magic and Sodomizers. King Phillip rounded up the Templars and executed them by burning at the stake over, 1500 knights.

One of the last Grand Masters, Jac De Molay, was captured and burned at the Stake in in 1314. While dying in the flames he cursed the Pope and the King saying he would meet them before God. The Pope died within a month and the King died later in the year,

The body of Jac de Molay was claimed by "friends" wrapped in linen and interred in a secret crypt.

Two hundred years later, the shroud of Jac De Molay surfaced and is claimed by some to be the legendary Shroud of Turin.

THE CHIEF'S CHAIR

The Chief's Chair at SCI FI CAFÉ

Rick Hale

One of the leading theories of late is that a person can have such a strong emotional bond with an object that their energy can somehow be attached to it. It's an interesting theory, and a popular one, but does it have any real basis in fact?

The picture I have added is one such alleged object called, "The Chief's Chair." While on our investigation and filming a segment for the Ghost Tapes 2 at the Sci Fi Cafe in Burlington, Wisconsin, we discovered a major EMF spike while sitting in the chair. However, when we stood up from it the EMF spikes ceased. I diligently checked the chair for anything that might cause the spike. I found nothing and wiring does not run under chair.

When I consider the strangeness of the events of the night surrounding the chair I'm not really prepared to go out on a limb and declare the chair a haunted object. I am however willing to say that it is something anomalous that deserves further study.

Over the years I have been on a few investigations where the resident of the home claims that they didn't start to have activity in their home until they brought an antique butter churn in the house. Then all hell broke loose. Why would anyone form an emotional attachment with a butter churn is beyond me.

When you bravely swim through the sea of demon possessed dolls and haunted butter churns, and all the other "haunted" you can buy on EBay, you are left with a few curious objects that have legitimate spirit activity associated with it. Do I believe that spirits can be attached to an object? To answer that simply, "yes".

Confederate Ghosts at the Cashtown Inn

Rick Hale

1325 Old Route 30
Orrtanna, Pennsylvania

For three days, the streets of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania ran red with the blood of the blue and the gray. Since the war broke out two years prior, Union forces brought the fight to the southern states that broke away from the Union.

Because of this, the Confederacy made an attempt to bring the war to the north by invading Pennsylvania. When the battle was over, the north came out the victor and turned the tide of the war to their favor. Sadly, the loss of life was so immense the battle is considered to be bloodiest battle of the Civil War.

(Civil War Uniforms photos provided by Tupelo Civil War Collection from Tupelo Veterans Museum, Mary Sutherland)

Anyone even with a mere passing interest in the paranormal knows Gettysburg is a Mecca of haunted places. People from all over the world, ghost and history enthusiasts, flock to this small town in the hopes of experiencing something beyond human reasoning. Quite the tourist industry has arisen in the town due to this.

If you're looking for a place to stay after taking in all the tour, and exploring all the haunted hotspots, you may want to consider the Cashtown Inn; a bed and breakfast in a nearby town with its own ghosts.

Built in 1797 by Peter Mack, the inn was a quiet place for weary travelers to get a bite to eat and catch a few hours of sleep before continuing on their journey. That quiet came to an end in 1863, when a fierce battle raged on their doorstep.

As the battle raged, the Confederacy needed a hospital to see to their wounded. Most of the injured soldiers brought in had wounds that required amputation. Many soldiers survived the excruciating procedure while others died on the operating table, clutching pictures of wives and children they would never see again.

Like the notoriously haunted battlefields that surround the charming bed and breakfast, the Cashtown Inn has its fair share of unexplained activity. Guests have heard the unmistakable sound of anguished cries and screams coming from the kitchen. It's believed the kitchen was the operating room where battlefield doctors sawed off the arms and legs of injured soldiers. Screams of tormented soldiers isn't the only paranormal activity that occurs at the Cashtown Inn. Much more is said to happen here.

Guests and staff at the Inn have reported disembodied voices coming from empty rooms, phantom footsteps and frightening apparitions. The most frequently encountered ghost at the Inn is a young Confederate soldier in a tattered, blood covered gray uniform. When he manifests, his face takes on a dark, grim countenance. When he vanishes he leaves a feeling of pain and deep regret.

Guests, who have dared to stay the night in the AP Hill room, have reported two very unnerving experiences. The rocking chair that sits in the corner starts rocking back in forth as if someone is sitting in it.

Others have reported being awakened in the middle of the night by a bone chilling cold and an unseen person sitting on the edge of the bed.

The General Lee Suite appears to be the domain of a very unpleasant spirit of an elderly woman. When she appears at the end of the bed, she has a stern look on her face that conveys the message, I don't care who you are. You are not welcome here. Loud bangs on the wall are heard and electronics turn on and off by themselves. Perhaps the ghosts have taken an interest in our modern gadgets.

The ghosts of the Cashtown Inn are not just limited to the interior of the building. The misty forms of Union and Confederate soldiers are witnessed wandering around the grounds. Some of these apparitions are so solid; people mistakenly assume they're actors. They soon find out what they saw is a long dead soldier that refuses to rest.

The Cashtown Inn Bed and Breakfast enjoys its reputation of being haunted. The owners even make it the center of their business. If you should ever visit just remember, be respectful of these soldiers who lost their lives so long ago.

MEET ISLE OF MAN VAMPIRE, MATTHEW HASSAL

Rick Hale

The Isle of Man is an ancient land steeped in old superstition and legends of dark wraiths, faerie folk and even, vampires.

Located on the outskirts of Castletown is Malew Churchyard, a seemingly ordinary graveyard with gravestones dating back centuries.

However, there is one unusual plot that stands out from among the rest.

A peculiar grave cornered by four iron stakes driven deep into the ground and draped in heavy iron chains. Who, or what, could possibly be buried there?

The Grave of Matthew Hassal, Vampire

If you speak with the locals concerning the bizarre grave, they will provide you with a response as bizarre as the grave, the man securely buried in the grave is Matthew Hassal.

According to them, Hassal is anything but human. Rather, he is a revenant corpse, more commonly known as a vampire.

Not much is known about Matthew Hassal, or his wife Margaret, who is buried next to him. The two lived a relatively quiet life free of attention.

Nevertheless, all that changed when Matthew inexplicably killed himself. He had given no indication of despair or trouble. He just decided to one day, end it all.

In those days, suicide was considered an unforgivable sin that brought with it the promise of eternal damnation.

In those days, suicides meant a Christian burial was out of the question. However, Hassal was granted one. And that's when things got weird.

Hassal rises in death to scare family and friends

While Matthew Hassal was laid out, his family and friends mourning his loss, his corpse suddenly sat up and let out a loud moan.

Your next read: Love sucks for the modern vampire girl
Everyone in attendance went into a panic. Ancient superstitions quickly took over and everyone concluded there was only one reason his corpse let out a moan. Matthew Hassal, must be a vampire.

Before his burial, a sharpened stake was fashioned from wood and was driven through Hassal's heart.

Matthew Hassal's grave in Malew Churchyard, Isle of Man
To make sure he stayed in his grave, four iron stakes were placed at the four corners of the grave with heavy iron chains draped over them.

Anyone familiar with the folklore of the British Isles knows that iron can stop any supernatural being dead in their tracks...Including vampires.

When the burial of the damned creature was complete, Hassal's loved ones departed the graveyard believing the vampire would trouble them no more.

They were convinced the monster was securely in his grave until the end of time. Of course, they were dead wrong.

Townfolk protracted from the vampire

According to legend, the iron stakes and chains were removed and the grotesque spectrum of Matthew Hassal was free to once again walk the Earth.

It was feared he would seek vengeance on those who tormented his body as it decayed in the ground. When the townspeople discovered the hideous mistake, they drove another stake through Hassal's heart.

After reburying him, they placed the iron stakes and chains in their rightful place.

They saw to it that the wretched revenant of Matthew Hassal would never trouble the living again.

This story had the makings of a late night horror film. The only thing missing is the popcorn.

But, the people of Castletown, Isle of Man believe this nightmarish tale.

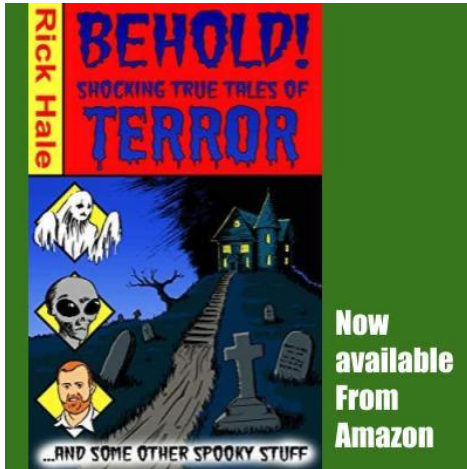

Castletown may be a thoroughly modern city, but old superstitions don't die quite so easily.

And the grave of Matthew Hassal, vampire stands as an eternally silent reminder of this fact.

AUTHOR AND RESEARCHER CANDY SHATKINS TALKS OF HER EXPERIENCE WITH MARY SUTHERLAND IN THE HAUNTED WOODS

I went to Burlington last night, to pick up some free cycle stuff, and so I wanted to drop in by Mary. While there, we decided to go out to the haunted woods and take some pictures.

When we first got there, everything was still and quiet and very peaceful. Mary brought a peanut butter Easter bunny to give to the spirits. Right away, we heard lots of noises. Mary heard an animal or something snort or grunt right away and both of us heard something crashing through the trees. We could hear things scurrying around right off the path, but when we would shine the light or take a picture, you couldn't see anything.

The mood was light and playful for a good ways in. Mary had commented several times about how the air was so light and it was calm and very nice. Then, she is ahead of me and stated that I was not showing up in the picture, and then she said I was back, according to the next picture. We were still enjoying the walk but now with caution. It was very dark, and it was just us two wishing more friends were with.

We saw a fallen tree, or half of it was fallen and that's kind of when things started to get weird.

There had been lightening flashing all evening which added to the charge in the air I'm sure.

Out of nowhere, the wind picked up way up in the trees, and a couple of branches fell.

We stopped, assessed the situation and kept going a little bit. Soon, there were sticks hurling down from all around us and you could hear commotion up in the trees.

I don't know, but I think I said something like, "Well okay, now their throwing sticks at us!" So we started to retreat.

I kept looking up and could see branches coming down and hear them snap but only like where we were, though.

It was the strangest thing. Some of them got stuck in the trees on the way down. You could see well when the lightening flashed.

After getting out of the woods, everything seemed to settle down so we went back a little; Mary felt it was okay again but as soon as we back in it started again. So we tried to go back, and it started again, so we decided to just go back and get out of the woods. We never even made it to the bridge!

I am a paranormal investigator and even wrote a book on Haunted Kenosha but this was the first time when I was doing something with spirits/ghosts when I was genuinely freaked out.

I wish we could've stayed, but it was clear to both of us that we were not welcome and was not supposed to go.

Funny thing is, as we're leaving, everything seemed to quiet down, and I know I didn't leave Burlington until after 2:00 am, and no storm had blown up yet. I really do think we went straight into a super vortex, and WOW! What a powerful thing that was! I have even wondered if it wasn't the vortex creating the commotion up in the trees. It acted just like when a huge storm is coming before a torrential downpour. Very hard to explain, but very, very cool! It was exciting! We got some very cool pictures, too. Just thought I would share. Candy Shatkins

HELP ME JEREMY

We went on your Burlington Tour and picked up an evp in the haunted woods. You can hear it say "HELP ME – JEREMY". Jeremy and I both had recorders going - and on his we found this evp. The voices says HELP ME and then I called out to Jeremy and within a split second of me saying his name so did the Voice. This one is a first for me I have never heard anything call out a name that quickly before .This happened at the Entrance as we first walked in. Tim

TIME LOOPS

I just wanted to write a note to let everyone know how I feel about the woods in Burlington, Wisconsin.

Jolene

Well the woods, has I would say alter egos. During the day it is a bit different than at night. It is so peaceful during the day and at night you never know what you will find or who you will meet.

There are so many portals out there and who ever and whatever comes and goes through as they please. You, yourself will step in and out of them. You may not even realize it, but if you are tuned in you will know, physically and through your thoughts. You just have to clear your mind and let yourself into another place.

There is a time loop or something of that nature out there. One time during the day my son and my friend

Jenny went out for a walk. We got to this point past the bridge and the hill and decided to turn around to walk back. Well as we got to the top of the 1st. hill, we were passed by a guy on a mountain bike. He was working on getting up without stopping in the middle. We waited for him to pass then we went on our way. We went past the bridge and got up to this one tree. The whole walk from one point to the next probably took 3 or 4 minutes. Well guess what; we saw the same man on the bike!

Jenny and I looked at each other in amazement. We talked about what we had saw right away, there was no way possible that he made the whole loop around us and then back to us in 3 or 4 minutes. It takes between 2 and 3 hours (depending on how many stops you make) to get through it. We have done it before. And there was no other way around that he could have gone to get in front of us. The only way over the creek is the bridge. Our first thought then was he had to be an alien....hmmm.

I believe that the past, present and the future are always around you. Out there I think they may just run into each other. Jolene

INTERESTING MAGAZINE

That is a lot of writing! I thought the oldest language was Montog, i.e. A P E meaning A Powerful animal. It was supposed to be the root language.

It is sad that we were never face to face friends. We have so many interests in common. I was actually in your area in the 70's on the road leading to your place near the lake with my metal detector. I found nothing so left after 15 minutes. Jim Balister

PAM MILLER TRIBUTE TO MARY

(Thankyou Pam, It is always nice to be appreciated for the work I have done through the years.)

Mary, I am working on a free website so we (Anita Meyer, Tammy Teigland and myself) can all "sort of get" the ascension process. I would like to link your FB and Other info, but I would never do that without your permission. I know, you already acknowledged our books, which was beautiful and gracious but we have not left you either. All this... is not possible without YOU. Thank you so much for the opportunity.

NO ONE KNOWS, HOW LONG, YOU HAVE BEEN IN THIS. I believe you to be a Warrior of Light, but I honor you on this Earth plane, by humbly thanking you for your service to not only Earth, Gaia, Tiamat. But to the dark forces in Los Alamos and Dulce- to the truth- that you fled to stay alive, and then you found us morons... not! Lol

We are with you Mary.
You were the first, brave one.
Tomorrow is a beautiful day, in a way we cannot even fathom, but we trust, because we believe, just like you. We just never had the demons at your doorstep like you did.

If you are a bright light in a dark world, the wrong people can see you. You gave zero shits about that!!

Not that you didn't want to be a bright light, not that - But if you followed the light, and no one else understood- you simply created a place - in time- (which we all know is funny) to "wait" for them

You are, OUR guiding light, but I would respectfully ask, if perhaps, in some small way, we also are yours. Not in an exclusive way, but in the inclusive way in which you invested blood sweat and tears- to teach us! Love you

Soulless Humans.... They Walk Among Us

by Mary Sutherland

Watch for this Upcoming Article and voice your opinions on the possibilities. We would love to read your thoughts on this issue.

Here is a little 'teaser' on the upcoming subject and a few comments already made.

Mary Sutherland: I have been writing and investigating humans born without a soul for years now...and am convinced that they exist. I have talked to priests and holy men about this as well. Another who has studied these soulless human 'beings' was Rudolph Steiner.

Dr. Steiner: "That little girl L.K. in the first grade must have something really very wrong inside. There is not much we can do. Such cases are increasing in which children are born with a human form, but are not really human beings in relation to their highest "I"; instead, they are "filled with beings that do not belong to the human class."

"Quite a number of people have been born since the nineties without an "I", that is, they are not reincarnated, but are human forms filled with a sort of natural demon."

"There are quite a large number of older people going around who are actually not human beings, but are only natural; they are human beings only in regard to their form."

Mary Sutherland: Psychologists would like to label them psychopaths or sociopaths and some would even like to convince themselves that they are treatable, but I believe something much much more dangerous is going on within the psyche of these ...do I dare say ... 'monsters

Comments:

Linda P Sociopaths and psychopaths are not treatable. I read a study where psychiatrists tried to rehabilitate them...personality disorders where they lacked the abilities to feel empathy or have human emotions...but all it did was make them better psychopaths because they learned more about how to act human...or pretend...by giving the answers or behaviors that were considered normal. Neurologists have been able to see different brain behavior in those with no conscience. Some may be aliens....but I think it would be very hard to tell the difference.

Eileen V Sylvia Brown talks about this in her books. Some dark entities come here with no angels no spirit guides no life map. They are only here to create havoc.

Ursula Bielski Mary your insights never cease to astound me!

Andrew W This post has led to some very interesting reading.

Without having seen the subject before, I always considered this likely. I think I have at least one 'friend' who may not have a soul. Literally, a few minutes after I experienced one of the most spiritual feelings of my life earlier this year, I received a text from the other side of the world filled with malice and hate. I didn't consider it a coincidence. Insofar as there's a universal consciousness and truth, I think there is a low vibration version which demonic energies share. And the levels are aware of one another.

Alaina R Boy would I like to meet you. And are they different from those with the Child of Rage syndrome? Yes I agree some are soulless and from having demons in them. If they were true humans then they could have the demon gotten rid of but they would still have their human soul; If they are hybrid children then no.

Stephanie Ann Mary great eye opening post because what is it a new breed? You recently wrote about cold hearted people versus compassion and these soulless ones Sound like in that category

Bet D Interesting. Since the age of 15, I have been aware of the similarities of this topic with what I call "Walk-Ins"...Cloning as well

Arthur L This has crossed my mind a few times

Anonymous - Hi Mary, we've never corresponded before but we are friends on fb of course. Interesting post. I recall one time that I met a (what felt to me like a soulless) person, don't recall if it was a male or female, but the person was an adult; I experienced the strangest mix of emotions at that encounter. Firstly, I realized that this person had no soul, but was just a body. I experienced feelings of shock, subtle horror, fear and the need to get out of proximity of that person. Needless to say, I am thankful that I have only had one such encounter. Keep up the good work. It's hard but something that needs addressing.

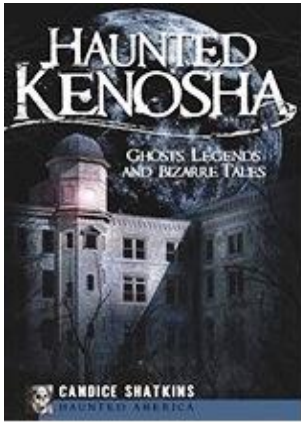

Anonymous- Mary.... I have been off Facebook for Lent but when I open messenger I glimpse the top post on my wall and I saw your post about soulless humans. I think we talked about these people around the time of the Shift in 2012. There were 3 people who I felt were this way, and I felt like the masks were beginning to come off, revealing what they were. Since then, though I have tried to avoid them, they continue to cause deep distress and exhaustion, creating situations that draw me in and drain me. I imagine you have read "People of the Lie?" Each year that goes by I feel the truth of this book more and more. Thank you for your ideas. You constantly make sense of very disturbing realities around us... and very hopeful ones too.

IS NOVA SCOTIA WHERE THE ATLANTIANS HAD THEIR STAR GATE?

Mary Sutherland

Right now I am investigating the possibilities of Nova Scotia to be the location of the star gate of Atlantis which had been built prior to the great cataclysm.

The province of Nova Scotia has the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Northumberland Strait, on its north side and the Atlantic Ocean on its south and east side.

The earlier definition of "Scotia" implied "Portal" or "Star Gate" and when something goes "Nova - it 'implodes'". Using the antiquated definition of Scotia Nova and realizing how Secret Societies like to hide things in plain sight, right under the very noses of the public, I believe the naming of this area was very deliberate and worthy of further investigation.

When the continent of Atlantis sunk, it created a great hole in the Atlantic Ocean. To fill up this hole and level off the waters again, the water flowed in from all sides, lowering the ocean level by hundreds of feet. Filling it in caused a drain on the Amazonian Sea, the Mississippi Valley and the St. Lawrence Valley. It emerged parts of Florida and extended the coast lines on both sides of the Atlantic.
